The programme is based on team coaching, which, sadly, is still not adequately translated into Slovene. Because the content of the programme is more important than the word itself, let the following explanation be a starting-point: that coaching is an increasingly popular approach to improving one's personal and business excellence, which first appeared in sports. Today, it is the fastest developing activity under human resources development, being neither classical consultancy or training nor therapy. Studies with verifiable data prove that coaching is more effective than classical training and directed towards the search for solutions and possibilities.

Team coaching is a creative process, directed towards achieving better results and greater efficiency of the individual. It is a process run by a coach, which literally translates to trainer, with the appropriate education and licence, confirming his or her competence.

The team coaching programme can be used when:

- a group or team has to be “tuned” to a certain topic (co-ordination with the company's strategy, setting the goals of a department, developing a communication strategy, new services, entrepreneurial idea etc.),
- organising strategy days,
- requiring a better exchange of information and co-operation among departments,
- requiring better co-operation among the key functions in a company,
- employing new people.

The list is limitless if the goal is clear. Our goal is to develop the skills and potential of the employees (from managers to mixed teams) and entrepreneurs in order to attain a higher level of business success in an environment that in no way resembles a work area. It is an efficient programme, placed between a light morning run or walk and afternoon cycling and an evening sauna or relaxational massage.

Team coaching will be adapted to your desires, the situation within the team, and the scope of the topics discussed.
